Yes, the City contributed $5,000 to the Arts Council for this study in March/April 2013.

I don't know if it went to Council as a separate agenda item. It was paid out of appropriations for the City Arts' budget, which was approved by Council at budget adoption on July 10, 2012.

Can anyone shed light on this? Did the city contribute 5k to this study and, if so, did Council vote on this? See the note from Goodtimes.

Beth?

Hey Jake – thanks…I'm going to copy in our new Arts Program Manager, Beth Ragel – we'll get to the bottom of it and be in touch.

Hi Keith,

How's it going?

We'll be doing a story soon on the attached Arts and Economic Prosperity study, which I believe was partially funded by the city of Santa Cruz with a $5,000 contribution. I got that info from the second page of this 2/12/2013 agenda item for the County Board of Supervisors, which also helped fund the study: http://sccounty01.co.santa-cruz.ca.us/BDS/Govstream2/Bdsvdata/non_legacy_2.0/agendas/2013/20130212-583/PDF/052.pdf

I'm having a hard time finding when/if this was voted on at the Santa Cruz city level. Would you happen to have any leads on when that was?

Thanks so much,
Jake
