GENERAL INFORMATION

Racer is a homogenous granule that contains six key secondary micronutrients in each granule. The uniform sizing of each granule provides easy handling, mixing and consistent application distribution. Racer provides sulfate based nutrients meaning what is applied is available for plant uptake.

Racer is most effective when used as a banded application below the seed, with the seed or in a strip-tilled application. Racer will flow through all dry fertilizer equipment including air seeders. Racer is not designed to build or correct nutrient deficiencies, it will deliver key nutrients for early plant growth and development.

DANGER!

Causes serious eye damage.

Harmful if swallowed. May cause damage to organs through prolonged or repeated exposure. Keep out of reach of children.

Broadcast Applications:

Racer may be used in combination with dry N-P-K blends to supply the micronutrient needs of all crops based on yield goals, soil test results and farm management plans. Use rate is dependent on crop requirements and pounds of nutrients desired for each blend.

NOTES

Racer contains boron. Some crops could potentially be harmed by applications of boron. Please use caution on sensitive crops. In-Furrow applications of Racer have proven to be safe at labeled rates. Use standard seed safety precautions with soybeans.

Racer has a low pH of 4.5, this increases nutrient availability for the crop and decreases nutrient tie-up in the soil.
