McKellar and Hervey Reunite On-Screen for the First Time since "The Wonder Years"

STUDIO CITY, CA – September 27, 2021 – Danica McKellar ("The Wonder Years," "Domino Masters"), Benjamin Ayres ("Suits") and Jason Hervey ("The Wonder Years") star in "You, Me & The Christmas Trees," a new, original movie premiering Friday, October 22 (8 p.m. ET/PT), on Hallmark Channel as part of the network's annual "Countdown to Christmas" programming event, your home for the holiday.

Olivia (McKellar) is Connecticut's resident expert on evergreens. Days before Christmas she gets a plea for help from Jack (Ayres), a Christmas tree farmer in need of her skills to figure out what mystery illness is causing their trees to die out and ruining their business, which has been his family's legacy for 100 years. After calling off her Christmas wedding six months earlier, Olivia isn't eager to head home for the holidays so she agrees to make a detour and stop at Jack's farm in Avon to examine the trees. Unable to immediately discover the cause, Olivia is determined to get to the root of the problem and extends her stay to run advanced tests. With time to kill while she waits for test results for the trees, Olivia joins Jack and his friends at the holiday festivities around town and finds their traditions a welcome change to the reserved holidays she grew up with. As they spend more time together, they begin to fall for each other and Jack helps Olivia reconnect to Christmas, her parents and herself. In the end, her tenacity pays off and Olivia not only devises a way to preserve Jack's trees but she discovers the shocking truth about why his firs were fizzling – much to the dismay of Dwayne (Hervey), a rival local tree farmer.

"You, Me & The Christmas Trees" is from Round Road Productions Ltd. Michael Shepard and Jean Abounader are executive producers. Charles Cooper is producer and Allen Lewis serves as supervising producer. David Winning directed from a script by Julie Sherman Wolfe.
