Demons at the Door: Faith and Mental Illness in Communities of Color

Saturday, October 28, 2017 | 9 a.m. – 3 p.m.

Lancaster Bible College

Capital Seminary & Graduate School

7852 Walker Drive | Greenbelt, MD 20770

For many people of color, faith and mental health are inextricably linked. The Biblical faith woven into the fabric of ethnic culture has long been credited for preventing depression, addiction, and suicide, even under the worst life circumstances. When mental illness does strike, people of color more often use faith to both explain and respond. In most cases neither ministers nor mental health professionals are equipped to translate Biblical concepts into the language of mental illness. This 3-part seminar aims to bridge that gap.

- Session I: Biblical Foundations
- Session II: Mental Disorders
- Session III: Mental Health in Communities of Color
