Wednesday of the Twelfth
Week in Ordinary Time

Good morning!

We celebrate Saint Irenaeus. We read Genesis 15:1-12, 17-18, Psalm 105, and Matthew 7:15-20. God and Abram make a covenant. Will a descendant come from the loins of Abram? We will wait. Jesus says, "Every good tree bears good fruit, and a rotten tree bears bad fruit." One will know another by the fruit they bear. Jesus warns us about false prophets. Do we need pruning? Are we producing "good fruit" these days individually and collectively? To whom are we listening? If our roots are deep in the Lord we may need a little pruning here and there to maintain our trust in the Lord and bear good fruit. If a part begins to rot, we need to cut it off so new growth will come. Patience and time lead to bearing good fruit, take time to listen, pray and look at the stars in the sky!

Peace,

RevKev
