

Monday, July 3, 2023
Monday of the Thirteenth
Week in Ordinary Time

Good morning!

We celebrate Saint Thomas, the Apostle. We read Ephesians 2:19-22, Psalm 117, and John 20:24-29. Thomas doubted until he was able to see for himself the wounds of Jesus. We have doubted at times in our lives when challenges, grief, or struggles have come our way. Hearing of Jesus' compassion towards Thomas and all of us, moves us to recognize that we are fellow citizens with the holy ones. Our doubts lead us to growth and our growth leads us to share with others who Jesus is. We may not be led, like Thomas, to bring the Good News to foreign areas but we can live and proclaim the Good News right where we are at. Thomas ended up shedding his blood for the faith. You and I can boldly proclaim and live the faith with the gift of the Holy Spirit in our lives. May we proclaim, "My Lord and my God" as we encounter Jesus in many ways today.

Peace,

RevKev

"Go out to all the world and tell the Good News."

<http://www.bible.usccb.org/>