Wednesday of the Third Week of Advent

Good morning!

We celebrate Saint John of the Cross. We read Isaiah 45:6-8, 18, 21-25, Psalm 85, and Luke 7:18-23. We are a people already in possession of salvation by our strengths and talents, and much in need of salvation from our faults and weaknesses. The Lord God is our all and the Lord has created and designed the earth to be lived in and not wasted. Creating all for us to be safe. We instruct many in the way of living and learn from those we instruct. Jesus wants to continue the flow by telling the disciples of John, "Go and tell John what you have seen and heard." Still today the blind regain their sight, the lame walk, lepers are cleansed, the deaf hears, the dead are raised, the poor have the good news proclaimed to them. What can the Lord do for you today? How will you share with others what you see and hear?

Peace,

RevKev
