Monday of the Fourth Week of Advent

Good morning!

"O root of Jesse's stem, sign of God's love for all people: come to save us without delay."

We read Judges 13:2-7, 24-25, Psalm 71, and Luke 1:5-25. We were all blessed in the wombs of our mothers. Throughout our lives, the "Spirit of the Lord" has been upon us. Have you reflected on this, acknowledged the gift, and followed the path of the Lord? You and I may have strayed a little, taken time to ponder what we were to do, or remained unknowing of this call we have been given. We may have even prayed for something like the wife of Manoah and Elizabeth did, and have given up hope, but wait, all in the Lord's time. We may be fearful before the Lord, yet God's grace gives us strength. Our Advent journey draws us into a deeper relationship with God and the mystery of life. May the light of this season shine on your path, leading you closer to your Bethlehem.

Peace,

RevKev
