

Add Jauch to the “MUST SEE” exhibitor list at The IDTechEx Show!

The Jauch group: At the edge of the Black Forest resides one of the leading experts in frequency control products and battery solutions. Founded in 1954 as a supplier for the Black Forest watch industry, Villingen-Schwenningen, a town located in the south of Germany, is their home.

Rhythm and energy are the impulse generators that drive our world forward. Jauch frequency control products can be seen today in many areas of our life. For example, in smoke detectors or other applications for the smart home. Numerous quartz crystals and oscillators are also used in the automotive industry. In places such as the control elements of the steering column, the center console or the roof, to name a few. Thanks to Jauch frequency control products, highly automated robots in industrial production can work efficiently for the specified time on the assembly line.

Without the crucial energy from our battery solutions, many applications would literally run out of juice. In blood analysis equipment, lock cylinders, intelligent door intercommunication systems; wherever an energy source is needed, Jauch is the right contact.

Look forward to what exciting insights we will give you the next weeks in our product world!

To carry our valuable products into the world, we can rely on a multitude of highly trained and dedicated employees and partners. Today, the network of competent Jauch specialists spans the entire globe! From Paris, the vibrant metropolis of France, the French colleagues are contact persons for the entire francophone world. In Surrey, a short hour away from London, lies the office of the British Jauch specialists. There, specialists mainly serve the UK and Ireland as well as many other customers in the English-speaking world. In Seattle, on the west coast of the USA is the seat of the American Jauch subsidiary. With multiple offices spanning over the country, they provide fast service to many other contacts in the English-speaking market. The youngest subsidiary is in Guadalajara, Mexico. A strategically important branch, as Jauch will better care for our Latin American contacts. In addition to Jauch's own employees, we can rely on a viable network of representatives in over 40 countries. Many of these connections have grown over the years and are therefore an important part of the Jauch family. Each one carries our Jauch values a bit further into the world. Built strong on a foundation of family roots, we are a competent and secure company for our customers, employees and partners as well as being internationally active.
