

Dear Parents:

This school year, our class will be using NextLesson.org, an interactive website that offers engaging lessons that connect learning to the real world. NextLesson provides a safe and easy way to engage students.

On NextLesson, students will be able to:

- Participate in lessons that make real world connections
- Think critically to rank items and provide their reasoning
- Communicate with classmates through the class chat feature
- Rate interests so that lessons can be catered toward their individual preferences, creating a more engaging classroom experience

In order for your child to use NextLesson, he or she must have your permission, and you must read and agree to the NextLesson Terms of Service on your child's behalf. (<https://www.nextlesson.org/company/tos>)

You must also read and agree to the NextLesson Privacy Policy. (<https://www.nextlesson.org/company/privacy>)

NextLesson takes privacy seriously. The only information required from students to set up a NextLesson account is their name, username and password. Students may complete lessons and also share their interests, color preferences and grade.

I hope that your child will enjoy using NextLesson to assist their learning this year. You can learn more about NextLesson by visiting www.nextlesson.org

I give consent for my child, listed below, to use NextLesson for class activities.
