

How Aventide works with Stripe

Invoices, deposits and payment at booking, paid to your own Stripe account. Aventide takes 0% of client payments, and Stripe's fees apply.

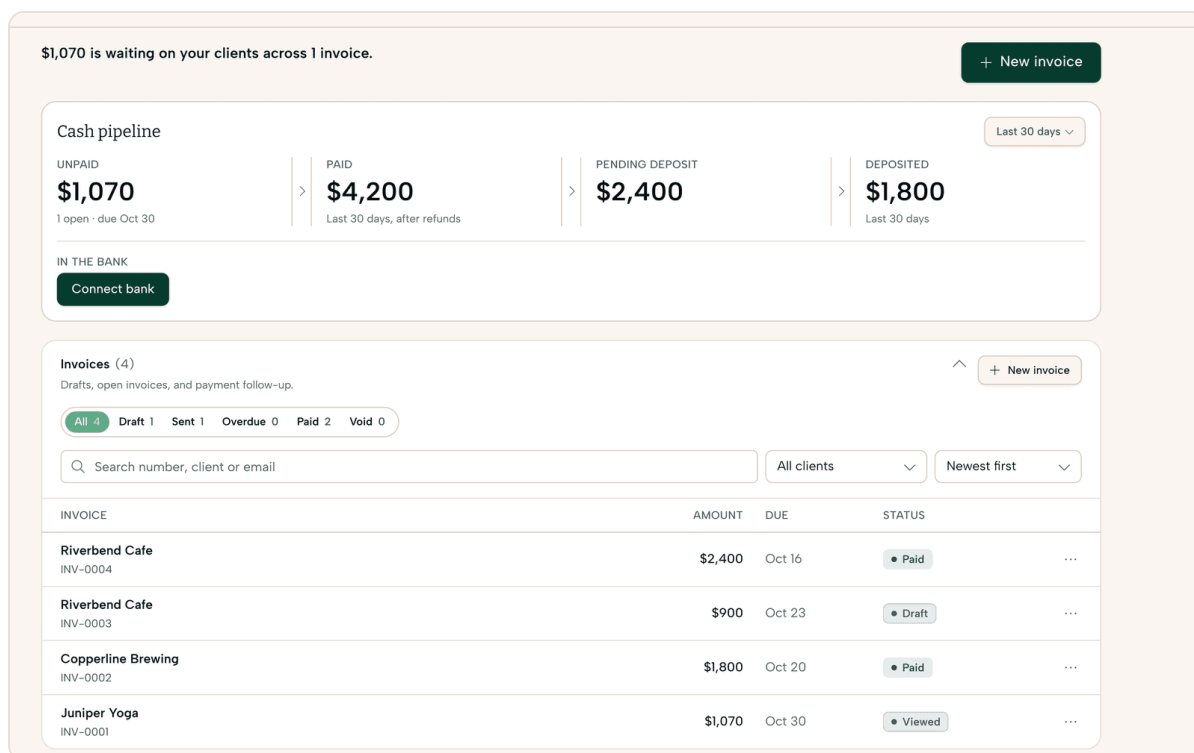

What you can do

- Send invoices, take deposits and let clients pay when they book. The money goes straight to your Stripe account.
- Connect a bank account through Stripe to see your money in one place.
- Also connects with QuickBooks.

Good to know. Connect a separate Stripe account for each business, or use one account for several.

Your money stays yours

Your clients' payments go into your own Stripe account: the one you already have, connected through the Aventide Stripe App, or one we set up for you on Stripe. Aventide doesn't hold the money and takes no cut. Refunds and disputes are handled in Stripe.

Money in Aventide: $1,070 unpaid, $4,200 paid, $2,400 pending deposit and $1,800 deposited, with four invoices, two paid, one viewed and one draft. Demo business.

When the contract is signed

When your client signs, Aventide drafts the deposit invoice and asks before it goes out. Approve it and Stripe emails the invoice to your client. Payments go straight to your own Stripe account, and Aventide takes 0%.

Any other invoice

Choose + Invoice in the client's room, then Save & send. If an invoice runs late, Aventide drafts a reminder for you to approve.

What we keep, and what we don't

- No card numbers. Card payments run through Stripe, which is certified PCI DSS Level 1. We keep Stripe's reference IDs and payment details like amounts, dates and status, never card numbers.
- No bank logins. If you link a bank account (through Stripe), we store balances and transactions so Money can show them. We never get your bank login.

How connections work

- Each business keeps its own connections. Stripe and QuickBooks can be one account per business, or one shared across several.
- Your email and calendar stay yours. Each teammate connects their own. Nobody else reads your mail, and teammates see only when you're busy.
- Disconnect any time. The connection is removed everywhere in Aventide at once.
