General Information

Infrared man (Irman) is a small device that allows you to control your PC with the remote from your TV, VCR, CD or Stereo. Irman can be used in many ways, for example to control a software program while you are in another room. Imagine controlling Winamp with a normal remote to choose exactly the song you want. Or watching DVD from your couch while still being able to pause or fast forward.

Hardware Information

Irman can receive the infrared signals transmitted by all sorts of remotes. It converts these signals to computer commands understood by software in your PC. This software is integrated into the programs listed below. Irman has been tested with over 40 different brands of remotes, they all work. A description and a picture of Irman can be found at the hardware page.

Software Information

At this moment these are the programs supporting Irman, but more are coming up. If you wish to program support for your favorite application please look in the FAQ.

Q: Which remotes does Irman support?

A: We tested Irman with more then 40 remotes, Sony, Philips, JVC, etc. they all worked. Irman has built in support for almost every ir remote standard. The only remotes which we think that are not compatible are from B&O, they use a very rare standard, and are therefore probably not compatible with Irman. However, the vast majority of remotes (over 95%) does use a supported standard and is therefore compatible with Irman.

Q: Can I program support for my favorite application?

A: Yes, we would really like that. Just send us an email what you want to do, so we can give you support and place your program on our homepage. The Visual C++ 5.0 source code of the winamp plugin version 2.2 and a interface description are available for download.

Q: How do you ship the Irman and how long does it take to arrive?

A: We use the postal service for shipping, we send it by recorded priority airmail from The Netherlands, Europe. It takes about two weeks to arrive after we posted them. We try to post them no longer than one week after you ordered, so your Irman should arrive within two to three weeks after your payment.

Q: Can I pay in another currency than dollars?

A: All creditcard orders are processed in dollars, but if you pay by mail or wire you may also send the equivalent of the price in euro's in your own currency. Make sure to use the "sell" exchange rate and round upwards so no coins are needed when sending cash. The price in euro's is e30,- for Irman plus e3,- shipping charges per order. If you pay with cheque or US money order please add an extra e7,- to your order. Please specify the currency and the amount you intend to pay in your ordering email.

Q: Can I use the Irman with my notebook?

A: There is a chance your notebook doesn't work with Irman. Some notebooks use 5V or 3V instead of 11V on their comport and are therefore not compatible with Irman.

Q: What cable can I use to connect Irman?

A: Please use a straight-through serial cable (not a null modem one). The cable can be very long, distances of 15 meter has been reached. If you make your own cable you need one with 5 different wires on pin 2,3,4,5 en 7.

Q: Does the Irman software work with my Irda port?

A: No, we're sorry, Irman software only works with the Irman hardware, you will have to buy it. It's impossible to use a normal remote with the infrared ports that are standard on many computers now days. These ports use a high speed protocol that's not compatible with a normal remote.

Q: Does Irman support the Irda protocol?

A: No, we're sorry, Irman can not use the Irda protocol because the speed of this protocol is to high, you will have to use a separate Irda port.

Q: What do I do when my question is not answered on this page?

A: You can always email us at irman@evation.com for all your questions.
