FIFA 09: Adidas Live Season

Electronic Arts today released a little more about your new installment in the FIFA series, which this time seems intended to include enough changes to keep the throne best game of football of the year. This time it is the turn to Adidas Live Season, a service that will provide EA, which allow no less than weekly update the database of all players in a league. How is this? For suppose we choose to play league Spain. So every week the schools of each of the teams that league will be updated, reflecting the stats of their players and the overall performance of the team, what happened in reality. For example, if we Agüero on a scoring streak in real life, we will see that reflected in the game, where Atletico Madrid striker also define much better. And if for example Messi does not perform as expected in Barcelona, then the game will also see impair its performance. Undoubtedly, a very interesting option, and can drastically transform our experience of game.

Electronic Arts has confirmed that the service will be available for the Italian league, English, Spanish, Mexican, French and German, and we can have free access to the update one of these leagues, whereas if we update any other, we pay some money not specified for the extra service. An update package for all leagues will be available for less than purchase separately amount will also be offered.
