Love is the greatest gift we can ever experience on earth. We love food, sports, hobbies, friends, family and each other. Yet even with all of these degrees of love, we often feel alone, empty and isolated. Why do so many of us settle for the "likes" of the world rather than seek authentic love? We will explore how St. John Paul II's Theology of the Body and Pope Francis' Joy of Love offer us a path to full union within the Father's heart. We will see how those who choose what is "hollow" may have more in common with those who seek the "hallowed".

Andrew Brown is a Lay Ecclesial Minister in the Diocese of San Jose and Pastoral Associate at St. Lucy parish. He's been a parish Youth Minister, DRE, and now as a Pastoral Associate where he works with engaged couples for Marriage Prep, those seeking initiation in the RCIA, parent Catechesis, Baptism prep, and forming discipleship small groups for young adults. He is the co-founder and Executive Director of Echoes of Worth, a theology of the body high school retreat for teenagers. He is a graduate student at the Augustine Institute completing an M.A. in Theology. Andrew is married to his preschool classmate and college sweetheart Mary Beth. The two became one in 2010.
