

As long as there's The Salvation Army, there no such thing as 'no place to go.'

Every year, The Salvation Army helps families and individuals in our community who struggle to attain the basic needs of food and shelter. This is our stark reality; individuals going hungry, people living in their vehicles, or facing life on the streets.

Your support enables us to heal families, children, and individuals in need. Together, we'll find a way to care for our most vulnerable so they can work, go to school, sleep well at night, care for themselves, and stay strong for the future challenges that inevitably face us all.

This year, The Red Kettle Luncheon will take place at the Grand Hyatt Seattle. This is an opportunity to hear firsthand how The Salvation Army's programs transition our homeless neighbors into safe, affordable housing, provide nutritious food, and how we help them navigate the many challenges they face along the way.

STORIES OF HOPE

- Our Street Level team found a grandmother who had custody of her 2 grandkids and her adult son. They were all living down by the riverbed in Auburn. We first found shelter for the family to get them out of their car. Within a month we found them an apartment. The adult son is now employed, and the children and grandmother are doing great.
- A single mother of 4 children came to us via a law enforcement referral. They had been living in their car for about a month. We moved the family into a motel on a Thursday and they left the hotel the following Wednesday with keys to their new apartment in Kent.
- Maria had driven past The Salvation Army's Renton food bank many times, but never needed to go inside and never expected she'd ever have to use a food bank. When her husband was laid off their grocery budget disappeared. Not knowing what to expect from a food bank, she was pleasantly surprised by the variety of food The Salvation Army offered and the kindness she felt from the staff made a difficult experience a bit easier.
- Nicole is a single mom with three beautiful children, ages 12, 10 and 8. As a working mom with no family or support, she needed extra help. She turned to the Salvation Army of White Center. There she received groceries from the Food Bank plus, her kids participate in the afterschool programs. It's a place they look forward to going every day after school. The kids receive snacks, help with homework, recreation in the gym, and dinner when mom arrives. Nicole is grateful for the peace of mind knowing her kids are at a safe place.
