A MESSAGE FROM ALASKA'S DIVISIONAL LEADERS

Lt. Colonel Doug Tollerud, Divisional Commander
Lt. Colonel Sheryl Tollerud, Divisional Director of Women's Ministries and Divisional Secretary for Program

Dear Friends of The Salvation Army,

We are so thankful for your continued support of our ongoing ministry, serving the most vulnerable in communities throughout Alaska. The importance of coming alongside those in grave need during critical junctures in their lives can make the difference in a family's or individual's long-term trajectory.

While we continued to recover from the pandemic this year, we faced new challenges with rising inflation. Increased food and energy costs caused many to fall into the difficult position of deciding which items they could afford and which they would have to forego.

Thanks to our caring donors and volunteers, we were able to assist over 52,000 Alaskans during 2021-2022. As always, our donors continue to astound us with their generosity of spirit, time, and resources, displaying your continued commitment in positively impacting the lives of fellow Alaskans. Thank you for extending a helping hand up to your vulnerable neighbors, transforming lives, alleviating need, and providing hope.

May God bless you,

Lt. Colonels Doug and Sheryl Tollerud

THANK YOU TO OUR MAJOR CORPORATE PARTNERS

The Salvation Army extends our sincere appreciation to the following corporations who have given a gift of $5,000 or more in support of our programs and services throughout Alaska. To become a corporate partner, please contact the Development Department at (907) 339-3461.

MAJOR CORPORATE PARTNER SPOTLIGHT

First National Bank Alaska has been a long standing major corporate partner to The Salvation Army Alaska Division. Through their continued commitment to our organization, we've seen programs like our McKinnell House Family Shelter flourish. Their dedication to philanthropy and time spent in service to The Army, volunteering and allowing their employees to serve on our board throughout the years, has left a lasting impact on the lives of the many individuals and families we have served. In 2022, First National Bank Alaska celebrated it's centennial anniversary. Serving Alaskan's, providing financial services, and investing in the state's future are a large part of their commitment to the community. Our sincere thanks to the First National Bank Alaska family for their support and congratulations on this milestone anniversary!

"The Salvation Army and First National Bank Alaska have both helped Alaskans for more than a century. And like First National, The Salvation Army reaches all across the state to help those who need it most. Supporting the communities we serve is a priority for us, and donating to the Salvation Army's emergency food programs for seniors and low-income households is one of the meaningful ways we do that. Together, we can help shape a brighter future for all Alaskans."
- Betsy Lawer, First National Bank Alaska Board Chair and CEO/President

Planned Giving

As a planned giving donor, you can provide long-lasting support for The Salvation Army in your community while enjoying certain financial benefits. Every planned gift is tailored to the individual donor. Whether The Salvation Army is named as a beneficiary in a will or bequest, provided a charitable gift or life estate, or given a gift of property, you can be assured that The Salvation Army will continue Doing the Most Good with your donation.

Learn more about how you can leave a lasting legacy by contacting the Western Territory Gift Planning office at (800) 298-6532 or email plannedgiving@usw.salvationarmy.org.

WILLIAM BOOTH SOCIETY

For over 150 years, William Booth's legacy of sharing transformational love, hope, and provision with those in profound need has continued on, in large part, due to the generosity of our gracious donors. The following organizations, businesses, and individuals who gave a gift of $5,000 or more during fiscal year 2022, meaningfully contributed to continuing his life's mission, making them an honored member of the William Booth Society.

LOVE IS...

TRANSFORMING LIVES

Ann Marie's Story

An unfolding of unexpected and severe circumstances caused Ann Marie and her husband to find themselves in a dire situation.

"People don't ever think certain things can happen to them, but I'm here to tell you that it happened to us," said Ann Marie.

In 2017, while her husband was away for work and she and their four children were at home, they experienced a fire that completely destroyed their house and belongings. They felt lucky to walk away with their lives.

While trying to process such a catastrophic loss, they began renting a unit which flooded with wastewater and caused them to eventually end up in an eviction proceeding and lawsuit with their landlord.

"We were barely back on our feet and now hit with this huge issue. We had to go to a hotel, and we were bleeding money everywhere. On top of it all, while we were waiting to rebuild our home, the contractor we hired embezzled our insurance money and we had no ability to recover any of the funds. When we finally found McKinnell House, I was so mentally and emotionally exhausted and really appreciative of the peaceful atmosphere. It was so helpful to find a landing place that could help me and my children get stabilized," Ann Marie shared.

She additionally shared that it was the personal interaction and the non-judgmental attitude that helped her to feel comfortable. Staff would extend extra help with her boys when she needed the support. Ann Marie added, "They treated us like regular people, with dignity, warmth and respect."

The family celebrated the Christmas season at McKinnell, and the staff helped her children to have as normal and festive of an experience as possible, especially while not being in their own home for the holidays.

"I found, over time, that acknowledging the tiny wins was like building brick upon brick for the foundation of our lives. We were finally able to catch our breath and begin to get back on our feet thanks to McKinnell. They provided me the opportunity to reassess and get connected to what my options were. The comforting and homelike environment that was provided helped me to focus and apply my skills to get into a better situation," Ann Marie also said.

Ann Marie and her family are now back in their own home, which they recently purchased, and are continuing to heal and move forward in their journey as a family. Because of her positive experience at McKinnell, Ann Marie recently began working there as an employee, feeling it was important to help give back and provide hope to other families experiencing similar difficulties she and her family once faced and overcame.

ALLEVIATING NEEDS & PROVIDING HOPE

Centennial Campground

The issue of homelessness is a complex one, and no two stories are alike. When Anchorage found itself facing the issue of where to house people who were about to be displaced due to the closing of the Sullivan Arena, Centennial Campground became the landing place. In July 2022, The Salvation Army began providing on-site coordination of client care at Centennial Campground, spearheaded by Captain Kevin Pope, Divisional Secretary, Jenni Ragland, Director of Emergency Disaster Services, and Anchorage Social Services Director, Captain Denice Delgado.

In collaboration with the Municipality of Anchorage and many other community partners, the provision of various services were offered to individuals staying at the campground, including: meals, case management, supplies, and more.

"Meeting with clients daily, getting to know their individual situations and needs, we found many do desire to have safe, secure housing, but the lack of affordable housing, which is an issue across our nation, makes this a difficult process to navigate," shared Captain Delgado.

The Mayor's office, as well as Parks and Recreation and the Health Department, continued to provide oversight of the campground facilities and other impactful assistance as needed while we worked with our fellow unhoused Alaskan's to find the best solutions to help them move forward. We successfully placed over 100 individuals in shelters, permanent housing, or rejoined them with support systems (friends and family) in other cities around the state and country.

The Salvation Army ceased operations at Centennial when the campground closed on September 30, 2022. We continued to provide transitional assistance to those who remained at the park while waiting to be moved to cold weather shelters. We are so very thankful to our partner agencies and the community of Anchorage who provided assistance and supplies for those in need and continue to do so today.

CHRISTMAS GIFT PROGRAM PROVIDING JOY TO ALASKA

The Salvation Army Alaska Division continues to share joy with families in need throughout Alaska. The GIFT program, which takes place annually the weeks before Christmas, distributes toys to children ages 0-14 years, and may also include food boxes and gift cards for teens. Toys are donated through the Angel Tree program, Toys for Tots, and the community-at-large. Volunteers serve alongside Salvation Army officers in packaging and presenting gift bags to parents or guardians for their children to open at Christmas. Collectively, we are all able to bring smiles to their faces and alleviate a burden for those who might otherwise not have anything for their children to open.

JUNEAU CORPS CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

The Salvation Army Juneau Corps celebrated its 100th anniversary in May of 2022. Juneau corps officers, Majors Shane and Gina Halverson, hosted guests including Commissioner Jolene Hodder, National President of Women’s Ministries, and Mayor Beth Wheldon who shared a proclamation from the city.

TEDDY BEAR PICNIC

Lt. Colonel Doug Tollerud addresses the audience at the Teddy Bear Picnic. September 2022

After a long hibernation due to COVID-19, our annual Teddy Bear event was able to take place again. Community members who decorated bears in a multitude of themes and costumes were able to put their bears on full display this past September at The Salvation Army’s Anchorage Corps Community Center as part of our reprised Teddy Bear Picnic. Proceeds supported our social service programs such as McKinnell House Family Shelter. McKinnell provides families in crisis with a safe haven while also having the opportunity to participate in classes offering a practicum of life skills and educational tools as they wait to be matched with their permanent housing solution.

INTERNATIONAL LEADERS HISTORIC VISIT TO ALASKA

On June 14, 2022, The Salvation Army's international leaders, General Brian and Commissioner Rosalie Peddle visited the state of Alaska. It was the first time an active General had visited the state since The Army began its work here in 1898. As part of the visit, services were held at the Anchorage Corps Community Center, to which the public was invited. The Salvation Army Alaska Division was pleased to host the General and Commissioner Peddle and were proud to share the beauty and culture of this great state and its people with them.

CELEBRATING 125 YEARS IN ALASKA

In May of 2023 The Salvation Army Alaska Division will mark a major milestone as we celebrate the 125th anniversary of The Salvation Army's arrival in Alaska. Evangeline Booth, fourth general of The Salvation Army and daughter of the founder, William Booth, arrived in Skagway alongside Klondikers in 1898. The first evangelical services took place in Dawson City, where a food and shelter depot was first opened. Their first Christmas they served 300 hundred dinners to locals, which was no small feat at that time. In contrast, The Salvation Army currently serves hundreds of thousands of meals each year. In June of 1899, the first corps was opened in Skagway by Adjutant T. McGill and Ensign Fred Bloss to begin long-term assistance to villagers in need.
