

BREAKING THE CYCLE OF POVERTY THROUGH PHILANTHROPIC LEADERSHIP

HOUSING

Homelessness is a devastating life event, but it's even harder as a single parent with a young child. When Sam found himself without a home, he and his son moved from shelter to shelter struggling to stay afloat. Recently, Sam and his son received supportive housing that gave them a second chance at a stable future.

EDUCATION

Sharell used to be a shy high school student who was unsure of her capabilities. Thanks to the Young Civic Leaders Program (YCLP) of United Way of Greater Los Angeles, Sharell learned how to advocate for her classmates' futures and her own.

ECONOMIC MOBILITY

Jose and Karina are parents to four children, and Jose, a grocery store distributor, is the sole provider. Free income tax assistance from United Way volunteers and support from a tax credit will enable their son to be the first in the family to graduate college. He is now a student at Cal State L.A.
