

Summa Comp Laude / DJD Award

Kimberly George

Kimberly George was named the Summa Comp Laude® / David J DePaolo Award recipient for her career dedication to making a positive impact in the workers compensation community. A pillar in the industry, Kimberly leads the way by identifying and defining key issues to watch, improving the experience of injured workers by encouraging an advocacy-based claims model and through her mentoring and leadership as a founding board member of the Alliance of Women in Workers Compensation.

“David DePaolo inspired me and continues to inspire me with the opportunity to carry his vision and his voice forward,” says Kimberly who began her career as a neuro-trauma nurse over 20 years ago. “David’s concept of challenging the status quo inspires me daily. By doing so, it makes us all better...the industry as a whole, not just an individual company or person. I am more cognizant than ever of what David envisioned and I am so honored to be a recipient of the award that also carries his name.”

As senior vice president, corporate development, M&A, healthcare at Sedgwick, Kimberly’s forward thinking has benefitted countless lives of injured workers and their families. She effectively uses her depth of knowledge, national exposure and platform to bring about positive changes in the industry. While she understands the technical aspects of this business, it is her care and compassion for injured workers, her desire to lead and inspire others and her steadfast commitment to doing the right thing that make her such a special individual and highly effective professional.
